The Man Who Knew Too Much

Thursday, April 25th
7:00 P.M. in the Social Hall

One of the most successful and critically acclaimed films of Alfred Hitchcock's British period, this 1934 thriller features Peter Lorre as the criminal mastermind of a group that has planned the assassination of an unnamed European leader. The New York Times praised it as "the raciest melodrama of the new year" and "excitingly written."

Discussion will be led by writer, musician and film buff, Paul Heinz.
